ISO 19011:2026 Transition

1 Day	4	17
DURATION	MODULES	TOPICS

COURSE OVERVIEW

The TRECCERT ISO 19011:2026 Transition is a focused course designed to provide participants with a clear understanding of the updated guidelines for auditing management systems introduced in the 2026 revision of ISO 19011. The course equips professionals with the knowledge and practical insights needed to plan, conduct, report, and follow up audits in line with the latest edition, and to transition their auditing practice smoothly from the previous version of the standard. Participants will gain a thorough understanding of the audit principles, the risk-based approach, and the management of audit programmes across one or more management system standards. The training also explores how to evaluate auditor competence, maintain impartiality, and apply the updated guidance to deliver credible, value-adding audits aligned with international best practice. What Makes This Course Unique: Provides a clear understanding of the updated guidelines for auditing management systems and their role in strengthening organizational performance; Explains what has changed in the 2026 revision of ISO 19011 and why those updates matter in today's risk-driven auditing environment; Covers the key elements of the auditing process – principles, programme management, and conducting audits – and how they function in practice; Demonstrates how ISO 19011 supports the auditing of one or more management system standards and how it can be applied consistently across different frameworks. This course is ideal for professionals seeking to update their auditing expertise, transition confidently to the latest edition of the standard, and support the delivery of credible, value-adding audits aligned with ISO 19011:2026.
